

Make small batches at a time

Stuff you'll need:

1 Cool Whip or similar plastic container

1/2 to 3/4 cup of plaster of paris

1/2 to 3/4 cup of peanut butter

Oat Meal

rubber or latex gloves

3" pic tube or even a cardboard toilet roll tube

Pour the plaster of paris in the container. With gloves on, work enough peanut butter into the plaster of paris until you get the consistency of cookie dough. If it's too dry it will harden fast, so you want it pliable and slightly sticky. Form small balls (about 1 inch).

Place several balls in a small tube (3" PVC is good) and placed it in areas where the birds would not access it. You could put them into a cage if it makes you feel more comfortable. You will be amazed how fast the rat balls disappear. You could be making them every few days and added more as they ate them up.
